JACKSON

WORST TOWN IN KENTUCKY

Present Moral Condition a Fit Sequel to Its Political Degradation.

Newspaper Men Dare Not Tell the Truth.

Special dispatch to Commercial Tribune from Jackson, Ky., says: The red sign of the fend is on every door-post in Jackson, and a town of 1,500 people is divided against itself. Dr. B. D. Cox was the latest victim of the feudists. About 8 o'clock on Sunday night, April 13, Dr. Cox started from his office to answer a professional call. Three reports of a shotgun were heard, and he fell, riddled with buckshot, not a dozen paces from the stables which led to his office on the second floor of a building at the corner of Court and Main streets. So tense is the situation in Jackson now that no one dares go on the streets after dark. The number of traveling salesmen has been reduced to one-half, and Circuit Judge D. B. Redwine has refused to try Tom Cockrell, accused of the murder of Benjamin Hargis, because it brings into opposition the two factions, and the judge thinks that it would be worth his life to sit in the case, whether the verdict went one way or the other.

A number of citizens have left town. Some of them were closely identified with the leaders in the feud and feared that they might be shot down at any time; others did not want to live in a town where open warfare seemed imminent, and where the fact of being the lukewarm friend of one side or the other might result in the loss of one's life. Governor Beckham has been appealed to for aid, now that two judges elected by the people have refused to serve, and has intimated that he will appoint a special judge to try the Cockrell-Hargis case.

OPENING OF THE FEUD.
On the night of February 19, Tom Cockrell, the town Marshal, and Ben Hargis, a son of James Hargis, County Judge, quarreled in John A. Bailey's saloon. Cockrell was knocked down, but he got up, shooting Hargis. Hargis had his revolver out, and in the exchange of bullets Cockrell fell, his head on the floor, after being himself twice wounded.

Dr. Cox was guardian for the Cockrell boys. There was a large family of them, and he had the management of the estate, which was worth from $10,000 to $15,000, almost a large fortune in this section. Dr. Cox was himself a young man, comparatively young, between 35 and 38 years old. He had married a Miss Cardwell, a sister to the famous railroad detective, Jerry Cardwell, who killed John G. Hargis, and really inaugurated the Cardwell-Hargis feud. This with the added fact of his business connection with the Cockrell boys, had its effect in the feeling entertained against him by the opposing faction.

Six feet four inches in height, immensely popular and entirely fearless, Dr. Cox did not take due precaution and went abroad after midnight, a thing that citizens have not done here in months unless under pressure of the greatest necessity. On the night of his death he received a call to attend William Back, and with a hatchet in hand, was preparing to walk down Court street to the Back residence when he was shot.

There were twenty-seven holes in his body, and four of the shots penetrated his heart. His friends claim that the first two shots brought him down, and that afterward a figure was seen hastening out from the shadow of a building, and, standing over the prostrate man, poured the third charge into his body to make sure of the work.
The funeral was the largest ever seen in Breathitt county, and fully 800 people followed the body to the grave. That Dr. Cox was aware of his danger is evidenced by the fact that he did not halt an hour before his death, he said to a friend: "I don't like the looks of things to-night. The signs are not right, and somebody is going to be killed. It may be me for all I know."

FEUDS MERGE TOGETHER.

The majority of the leaders of Breathitt county, merge into one another, almost invariably having some point of contact. It is always hard to say where one feud begins and another ends, but the beginning of the Cardwell-Hargis feud can probably be traced to the sensational duel between Jerry Cardwell and John G. Hargis. It grew out of a race for town Marshal ten years ago, in which Cardwell was a candidate, and the Hargises placed a man in the field against him. The primary quarrel between the men was over the vote of a negro. Hargis wished to prevent him from voting, and as he was an adherent of Cardwell, that candidate naturally insisted that he be given the right to cast his ballot. It was in October, 1886, that the men finally had their death struggle. Hargis boarded a train on the Lexington & Eastern road at Beattyville Junction. He was intoxicated and disorderly and the conductor called on the train detective, who, at that time, happened to be Jerry Cardwell.

No one seems to know exactly how the fight began, but at any event almost as soon as Cardwell stepped into the door of the coach both men were firing at each other in the aisle of the crowded coach. Intense excitement prevailed and passengers crawled under the seats during the fusillade. Both men emptied their revolvers. Hargis was shot over the right eye, in the neck and in the body. Any of the wounds would have proven fatal. Cardwell received one bullet in the right arm and another in his right breast. He owed his life to the fact that this second bullet struck a bundle of papers in his pocket and was slightly deflected.

AL LITTLE KILLED.

Another killing which was by some thought to have been connected with this same feud was that of Al Little, who was at the time proprietor of the notorious Red House, which is known far and wide throughout Breathitt and the adjoining counties. Many of the fatal brawls which have occurred in Jackson happened at this Red House, on a hill near the edge of town. This is a local option town, but moonshine could be obtained at all times at this resort. Little was shot by Jesse Fields, a famous sharpshooter and Everole adherent, in the French-Everole feud, but Fields' adventurous career was itself terminated by Moses Felner before he could be prosecuted for the killing of Little.

The father of the feuds in Breathitt county was Captain Bill Strong, a half Indian who figured in the Strong-Ames and the Strong-Callahan feuds. The former feud began on account of the alleged stealing of hogs from Strong by the Ames faction. Open warfare resulted. The Strong household was besieged by his opponents in force, and it was only by chance that a little negro boy managed to slip through the lines with a horse and ride to Jackson. Edward Marcus, who was Strong's lieutenant in the Civil war, Marcus gathered a party of friends and rode to the assistance of his former Captain. A pitched battle followed in a cornfield, with many fatalities. Later the Strong-Ames forces again met and fought it out until there were several dead on each side. Following this, bushwhacking was indulged in for several years, until the Ames were driven from the county. The Strong, however, were to meet with reverses, for in their feud with the Callahans, which arose soon after, Captain Bill Strong was waylaid on his way home from church in company with his daughter and her child and was shot to death. He was the backbone of his faction, and with him out of the way the Callahans had no difficulty in driving his sons and their nearest relatives from the county.

WORST TOWN IN KENTUCKY.

Jackson is known as one of the worst towns in Kentucky. It is located on the Kentucky river and is arranged on several hills. The four streets which bound the court house square are the principal thoroughfares. There is no street lighting, yet a wayfarer at night carries a lantern at the risk of having it made the target for some drunken marksmen, and it is no unusual thing to find lanterns in the middle of the street in the morning where they have been thrown the night before, so that the owner might get out of the range of fire.

Citizens are often compelled to throw away their lights and lay flat on their faces in the mud to avoid shots. The discharge of revolvers in the streets is taken as a matter of course, and this shooting became so common in one section near the river that it was dubbed "the Philippines." The true situation here has just leaked out, so the correspondents have not dared publish the news, and the most serious trouble is anticipated at any time.

Horseflesh as Food in France.

The taste for horseflesh in Paris which is demonstrated by the banquet does not date back many years. It was under the Second Empire, during the expedition to Morocco, that it came into the dietary of the French soldiers. The expeditionary column had nothing to live upon, so it slew and ate the horses, and every one was greatly surprised at the quality of the meat. Emile Decroix, a veterinary surgeon with the troops resolved to profit by the experience. Arrived in Paris, he set about popularizing the horse as food. He distributed meat gratuitously to the poor population. In his propaganda he interviewed the Prefect and Ministers, and even had audience of the Emperor. He opened the first hippopotamus butchery in the Place d'Italie in 1866. It was the siege of Paris that caused the flesh of horses to be regarded as a positive delicacy. That was 32 years ago. How has the nation progressed since? Paris has now 350 shops where they sell the meat; all are prospering. Last year 30,000 horses were slaughtered and eaten. Rouen, Toulouse, Lille and Orleans have all taken to horse eating. The meat is cheaper than beef. Whereas one pays three francs the liver for good fillet of beef, it only costs a franc if you take horse. The animal that was eaten the other day with such eclat had a singular history. It won several steeple chases at Antwerp and Bois-Colombes. It was an English mare, and its name was Nell Gwynn. In November 1893, the crowd on the course was very irritated at the defeat of the favorite in the preceding race. It revenged itself by throwing stones. One of the stones struck the left eye of Nell Gwynn and ruined the sight. Nevertheless the noble beast won the race. She deserved a better fate than to be eaten.

In many instances attacks of cholera morbus terminate fatally before medicine can be procured or a physician summoned. The safe way is to keep at hand a reliable medicine for use in such cases. For this purpose there is nothing so sure as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. W. R. Bosworth, of Lafayette, Ala., says: "In June, 1900, I had a serious attack of cholera morbus and one dose of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy gave me relief in fifteen minutes." I don't like full moons. I love and I want lights that half conceal and half reveal the beauties of the midnight world. Let others rave about the glory of over-full harvest moons that drip with luscious splendor, like some great juicy plum held carelessly by a thoughtless hand, but give me the tender reserve of a moon from which time has stolen something of its youthful excess and meridian completeness leaving a chastened gleam in its stead, like the smile on a face that has been washed by tears.

Read It in His Newspaper.
George Schaub, a well known German citizen of New Lebanon, Ohio, is a constant reader of the Dayton Volkszeitung. He knows that this paper aims to advertise only the best in its columns, and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised therein for lame back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could get no relief. He says: "After using the Pain Balm for a few days my wife said to me, 'I feel as though born anew,' and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable pains had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties." He is very thankful and hopes that all suffering likewise will bear of her wonderful recovery. This valuable liniment is for sale by all druggists.

MISSING ALL THE FUN.

How the R. E. Lee Beat the Natchez in a Famous Race.

John Wicat, engineer at the pumping station of the Louisville Water Company, is the only surviving person who was aboard the Robert E. Lee when she made her celebrated race with the Natchez, says the Courier-Journal. It is said that Mr. Wicat's description of the race is the most correct statement of the contest ever published.

He has given his recollection of the boat and the race as follows: "The Robert E. Lee was built at New Albany, Ind., by Capt. John W. Cannon, left the Portland wharf in the fall of 1865 for New Orleans to go into the Vicksburg trade. Her engineers were Wm. Perkins, first engineer; Thomas Berry, second engineer; John West and Huston, as strikers; her engines were forty-two inches in diameter, ten-foot stroke, eight boilers, thirty-two inches in diameter, thirty-two feet long, four flues, her paddle wheels were forty-five feet in diameter, eighteen by three feet buckets. I remained on her for three years, then went with Commodore Parson on the Yazoo river to take charge of one of his boats.

The steamboat Natchez came out in 1869. She was built in Cincinnati and was expressly designed to be faster than the Lee, the two boats running in the same trade from New Orleans to Vicksburg—400 miles—the Lee leaving every Tuesday and the Natchez on Saturday. There was great rivalry between the two boats as to which one was the faster. In the spring of 1870, the Lee left the Vicksburg trade and went into the New Orleans and Louisville trade, leaving every Thursday. The Natchez dropping out of the Vicksburg trade and going to St. Louis, leaving every other Saturday. The talk became so general about the two boats that Capt. Leathers, of the Natchez, published that she would leave on the Lee's day and show she was the faster boat of the two, so that threw the gauntlet to Capt. Cannon. On the arrival of the Lee at Vicksburg from New Orleans, I went aboard of her and asked Capt. Cannon if he was going to make the race. He said no, but would leave on his regular day and pay no attention to the Natchez, but when he arrived in the Ohio river the merchants got after him, so he changed his mind and on the arrival at Cairo he telegraphed to me to be ready to go on the boat to New Orleans when she arrived. Then I knew the race was coming off. We arrived at New Orleans Tuesday evening, then went to work to prepare for the race Thursday evening at 5 o'clock.

On the down trip we had taken on pine knots for fuel at Red river, at New Orleans we took on all the coal we could carry without overloading the boat, every thing that was surplus on her was taken off to lighten her.

CAPT. CANNON'S ORDERS.

"On Thursday Capt. Cannon called all the officers together for instructions as to leaving on Thursday, June 30. He wanted everybody ready at 5 o'clock, the pilot in the pilot house, but not in sight, the engineer at the throttle valve, the mate to have one man could balance it clear of the wharf, and one line out with a man to cut it with an ax, and he would not ring any bells, but would give one tap of the bell for all instructions. The United States Inspector, Whitmore, of New Orleans, came aboard just before we left and inspected the safety valve and the lock-up valve, locked and sealed the same.

"At 5 o'clock one tap was given, man cut the rope, one man on the stage plank to tip it clear of the wharf, pilot in the pilot house rang the backing bells and the 'Wild Bob' was off. The reason of this was the Natchez had made her hags that she would not leave until after the Lee, for she was going to pass her in sight of New Orleans. As we passed St. Mary's market, where all time is taken from, a cannon was fired. As the Natchez passed the same given point a cannon was fired, only one minute and a few seconds difference, and that was the closest she ever came to us.

TROUBLE WITH THE MACHINERY.

"Now our difficulties. We had a five-inch hot water pipe to pull apart in the hold, but we repaired it without stopping. This happened about five miles from New Orleans. Also during the night we sprung a leak in one of our boilers and it began to look like we would have to go to the bank, for it was putting out the fire under three boilers and we were hardly able to supply it with the doctor pump, the leak was so great. We tore down the sheet iron work under the boilers and made the inspection. We discovered that there was no danger in it if we could only stop the leak. We took hemp and cut it into bits. Then we put the hemp in the pump chamber and started the pump and forced the hemp into the boiler and repeated it until we finally got the leak stopped. All this time the Natchez was pulling upon us. Just before daylight I stepped out on the guards to see how close she was and just at that time they opened their fire doors and I thought she was within about 40 yards of us. At that time we were getting in shape again, then we began to pull away from her. Some time in the morning Capt. Cannon came into the engine room and requested Mr. Perkins not to run the boat so fast as we were rapidly pulling away from the Natchez. Mr. Perkins said to him that the Natchez was not bothering him, we were after the steamer Princess, horns at Natchez which had the fastest record up to that time, but Capt. Cannon said we were too far behind to take them, but we took them anyway. We were out on the wharf to see her go by and she was going then if she ever did in her life. Excursion boats and tugs went up the river to watch the race. The Mississippi bank from New Orleans to St. Louis was crowded with people camping out to see the boats go by.

"A person told me two years afterward that he was one of the party of twenty who camped out seventy miles above New Orleans to watch the boats go by. Some of them had come as far as fifty miles from the interior. Of course they had their jugs with them, and had sampled it too much. They left two men to watch for the coming of the boats and the others went to sleep also, and never wakened until next morning, when the boats were up above Red River. They had missed all the fun. At every city on the river there were big crowds out day and night. At St. Louis there were excursion boats crowded with people, and the boats extended as far down the river as twenty miles. The Iron Mountain Railroad, running parallel with the river, was full of excursion trains.

"After the race I went back on the Lee as engineer and remained on her then until 1873, then left to accept my present position as engineer at the pumping station of the Louisville Water Company.

"The officers of the Lee were John W. Cannon, Captain John Mossop, clerk; Jack Sullivan, clerk; Joseph Roberts, clerk; John Bell Stewart; Ed Cummings, mate; Capt. Wm. Conner; pilot; William Perkins, first engineer; Thomas Berry second engineer; John West assistant; George Brown assistant; Joseph McChory, striker; Thomas Hayden, striker."

WORDS OF WISDOM.

The friends that wealth makes are as the quicksand, but the friends of poverty are like the fixed stars in heaven.

The idler that dreameth of gold suffereth hunger, but he who hath dug for it liveth in a palace.

The heart of a woman is as a driven well, and he who would sound its depths must be blessed in patience, even like one who digeth for pearls.

It were safer to place your mouth on the muzzle of a gun than on the lips of a deceitful woman.

Sometimes we envy the prosperity of a wicked man, little knowing how the wicked man envies us.

It were better to be kicked by your friend than kissed by your enemy.

'Twere better to see clearly with one eye than mistily with two.

Plain duties become beautiful through their performance.

They say love is blind, but a woman can see a thousand qualities in a man he never possesses.

A woman would be willing to die for the man she loves, but she couldn't keep from saying "I told you so" for the very life of her.

GIRL KIDNAPED

By Employees of Buckskin Bill's Wild West Show, Four of Whom Have Been Arrested.

Ashland, Ky., June 23.—Four employees of Buckskin Bill's Wild West show were arrested here this afternoon charged with kidnaping and repeatedly assaulting a fifteen-year-old girl. The show was at Vanceburg yesterday and the afternoon performance broke up in a fight. During the row Laura Belle Murray, the pretty fifteen-year-old daughter of William Murray, a prominent Lewis county farmer living at Ruggles, became separated from her parents and was seized by one of the employees of the show. Despite her screams, which were not noticed in the general confusion, she was carried to a van on board the show train. She was kept a prisoner in the van, and it is alleged, was repeatedly assaulted by different men during the night. No night performance was given and the show left for this city.

C. R. Morlarity, trainmaster of the Cincinnati division of the Chesapeake and Ohio, who chanced to be in Vanceburg, was told of the disappearance of the girl by her distracted father and learned from a brakeman on the show train that a girl was seen on board the train just as it was pulling out and began the search. When the train reached Garrison, a station several miles from Vanceburg, the men who had the girl prisoner became alarmed and threw her from the train. Morlarity saw the girl fall, jumped off the train and picked her up. She was not much hurt by the fall, but was nearly dead from the horrible treatment.

Mr. Morlarity caught the next passenger train and brought the girl to this city. He notified Sheriff John Hasty, who immediately summoned the train crew and in company with Morlarity and Officer Frank, of the city police force, went to the grounds. The men had just made up as cowboys and Indians for the afternoon performance, but the brakeman identified four of the men and, despite a liberal display of guns and pistols, they were arrested and taken to jail at Catlettsburg. There they gave their names as William Patterson, Robert Mayes, Mick McCarty and James H. Harding.

The young girl though nearly crazed, identified three of the men, though it is thought more men, including some of the Indians were guilty. Sheriff Hasty wired Sheriff Bowman, of Lewis county, who took the three men to Vanceburg this afternoon. Harding, the fourth man is in jail at Catlettsburg. Sheriff Hasty thinks he is innocent, but will hold him as a witness and does not want to risk him at Vanceburg, where it is feared the men will be lynched. Mr. Morlarity took the girl back to her home at Ruggles. She is in a serious condition.

A line in the Ladies' Home Journal contains eight words, and the advertising rate is five dollars a line. No orders for less than five lines accepted.

Smells Death.

A London physician of large practice asserts that owing to his extremely sensitive sense of smell he can foretell the coming of death within forty-eight hours. He says that when a patient comes within two days of death, a peculiar, earthy smell is emitted from the body. White Bronze.

Marble is entirely out of date. Granite soon gets moss-grown, discolored, requires constant expense and care, and eventually crumbles back to Mother Earth. Besides, it is very expensive. White Bronze is strictly everlasting. It cannot crumble with the action of frost. Moss growth is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. Then why not investigate? It has been adopted for nearly one hundred public monuments and by thousands of delighted customers in all parts of the country. It has been on the market over 25 years and is an established success. Many granite dealers have bought White Bronze for their own burial plots. We have hundreds of beautiful designs of all grades of work and want to have you see them if you are interested in a monument, headstone, marker or grave-cover. On receipt of a postal card will be pleased to call with designs and sample of White Bronze.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

For Circuit Judge.
We are authorized to announce W. T. OWEN, of Litchfield county, as a candidate for Circuit Judge in the Sixth Judicial District subject to the action of the Democratic party.

CONGRESS is expected to celebrate the glorious fourth by a final adjournment.

THE House Conference have agreed to the Senate's Panama Canal bill, and the building of the Panama Canal is now practically assured.

KING ALBERT, of Saxony, is dead, and the court will go into mourning for three weeks, but allowing a suspension of a few days for King Edward's coronation.

THE State of Kentucky is about to come into possession of a million dollars from the Federal Government for interest on money furnished the government during the war.

THE hotel keepers, bus drivers and observation position owners, are making it impossible for people of moderate means to attend the coronation of King Edward. The British press is clamoring for police regulation of these matters.

GOVERNOR BRADLEY said in his speech at Litchfield, Wednesday, that the issue would be made up of one party behind the American and one behind the Philippine soldier and that it wasn't necessary to mention which party would be standing behind the boys in blue.

WE are indebted to Mr. John H. Copping for a pleasant drive over the city of Litchfield while there Wednesday. Mr. Copping drove us over the principal streets, and pointed out to us the most attractive residences and other objects of interest. Litchfield has some beautiful residences, and has, perhaps, the best streets of any small town in Kentucky.

EDITOR H. B. Morehead, of the Green River Republican, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the 3d district. Editor Morehead has been fighting the battles of the Republican party for many years, and his faithful and unselfish party service, and his splendid natural ability, entitle him to recognition at the hands of the Republican as the "bloody third."

BRYAN is saying all sorts of mean things about Cleveland and Cleveland is saying many sorts of things about Bryan's brand of Democracy. Surely this unseemly quarrel between the leader who gave his country two of the most disastrous administrations it ever had and the one who made two of the most disastrous races his party ever experienced, should drive Democrats to seek respectable leadership.

THE Republican Judicial Convention at Litchfield Wednesday, was well attended. Judge Guffy was nominated by acclamation for Judge of the Appellate Court. Governor Bradley and Attorney General Pratt, made splendid speeches, which were well received. The large attendance and great enthusiasm at the Convention shows that the Republicans are going into the fight to win. The Republicans carried the district by substantial majorities at the two last general elections and should be able to do again.

WISE COUNSEL.

At a meeting of Democratic leaders for the purpose of devising ways and means to rehabilitate the Democratic party, Grover Cleveland wisely said:

"Whatever the measure of its impairment may be, our condition as an organization cannot be improved by calling each other harsh names, nor by inaugurating a system of arbitrary proscription and banishment. The members of a business firm in financial embarrassment should not sit down and look in each other's faces in mute despair, neither will they regain financial soundness or the confidence of the community by recriminations and quarreling; nor will any members of the firm aid in its restoration to a solvent state by an angry bulwark upon a continuation of the business methods which have invited its embarrassment."

But the characteristic of heeding sensible advice is not peculiar to the Democratic party, and besides, however sagely Mr. Cleveland may talk about the future of his party, his two disastrous administrations must necessarily discount his advice.

EDITOR'S REUNION.

Saturday morning it occurred to us that all the former editors of THE REPUBLICAN were in Hartford, and we at once invited them to a meeting in our office. Those present were Col. C. M. Barnett, founder of THE REPUBLICAN in 1890, now Surveyor of the Port at Louisville; Rev. J. B. Rogers, editor from 1892 to 1894, pastor of a Baptist church at Springfield, Illinois; Mr. S. A. Anderson, editor from 1894 to 1899, now clerk of the Ohio Circuit Court, and Mr. Lon

Rogers, who edited THE REPUBLICAN from 1899 to 1902, who is in the banking business at Greensburg, Ky.

The writer and Mr. Fox Rogers, who is now Cashier of the People's Bank at Greensburg, were co-editors of THE REPUBLICAN during the first half of the year 1899.

Judge B. L. D. Guffy.

Judge B. L. D. Guffy will be re-nominated at Litchfield today for Judge of the Court of Appeals. Judge Guffy was ridiculed because he was not a city dude, because he had lived his life in Western Kentucky and had not acquired a taste for canvasbacks and champagne, and because he did not write Latin verses, as some of our more elegant jurists do. The Judge would even sit out under the trees in his shirt sleeves and tell homely country anecdotes with a comical drawl. True, the stories that he told would always have a point, not too fine, either, for the comprehension of the listeners, and it always fitted the case; but the Democratic press of Louisville could not understand how such a man could know law.

And Judge Guffy went to Frankfort and took his seat on the bench, and there was a lull among the dukes. Then he handed down an opinion, and the dukes wanted to know who wrote it. It was clear, concise, unanswerable; its English was pure and even elegant; surely this country lawyer could not compose such an opinion. And yet Judge Guffy went on commending the respect of his associates on the Appellate bench, and of the bar of the State. No Judge of this court has done more work; none has handed down abler or clearer opinions; and from being only a local judge in Western Kentucky he has attained to as high a standing in the eyes of the legal profession as has any Appellate Judge in the history of Kentucky's judiciary.

And now it will be interesting to observe what arguments will be advanced against Judge Guffy's re-election. Nothing in his record can be brought against him, and the fact that he is still inclined to sit under the trees in his shirt sleeves, when he is among his home people, will not much militate against him with the voters who have the selecting of a Judge, and he will tell his homely stories with the flavor of the crossroads store and the goods box and the woods and the harvest field; and his friends and neighbors will be proud of him, and loyal to him; and he will be given the merited honor of a re-election.—Wednesday's Commercial.

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nice cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE KEYNOTE

Sounded by Republicans at the Second Appellate District Convention.

A Big Gathering at Which Loyalty to the Party is Assured.

Litchfield, Ky., June 25.—Judge B. L. D. Guffy, present Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals, was unanimously renominated by the Republicans of the Second Appellate District in convention at Litchfield yesterday in one of the most enthusiastic gatherings held in Kentucky for many years.

There was but one sentiment of loyalty to the Republican party. Men who have been opposed to each other in factions of the party for two years were there joining in the love feast, pledging themselves to support and labor for the re-election, not only of Judge Guffy, but of the Republican congressional candidates. Former Governor Bradley made a memorable address, that pointed out to Republicans the hope of the future, and offered inspiration for their efforts. Attorney General, Clifton J. Pratt, surprised the convention by dropping in on it, and his speech, while short, was a dignified effort that stimulated the workers to action.

Resolutions were adopted commending the course of President Roosevelt and the Republican Congress. The Democratic attempts to cast reflections upon the army of the United States were denounced. Judge Guffy was commended for his wise and honorable discharge of his high office. Goebelism was denounced in dignified terms.

On the whole the convention was a veritable love feast, with but one sentiment and one purpose, and the delegates representing 17 counties in the district left here to-night with renewed energy in the work for the success of the party.

The convention was called to order at 1:10 by Chairman N. T. Howard, of Butler county, who introduced Rev. G. P. Jeffries, of Litchfield, who offered a fervent prayer for the Commonwealth. Chairman Howard said the committee had selected Dr. Wm. Turner, of Bowling Green, an permanent chairman. There was no other nomination, and Dr. Turner was elected with enthusiasm.

Mr. J. R. Eakridge, of Breckinridge county, was elected secretary. The committee on resolutions was named by Chairman Turner as follows: Judge J. T. Sparks, Muhlenberg county; Chairman J. R. Higdon Hancock; J. W. Hertel, Butler; R. E. Justice, Allen; F. G. Van Rensselaer, Davies; G. W. Adams, McLean; C. W. Long, Grayson; M. L. Heavrin, Ohio; Eugene Edwards, Edmonson.

JUDGE GUFFY NAMED.
The committee retired to prepare resolutions and Chairman Turner called for nominations for Judge of the Court of Appeals from the Second district of Kentucky. Hon. John P. Haswell, Jr., of Breckinridge county, took the floor and in a speech of great merit nominated Judge B. L. D. Guffy.

Mr. Haswell had the honor of nominating Judge Guffy eight years ago. Mr. E. W. Neal, of Butler county, seconded the nomination of Judge Guffy. Col. Ed Ware, of Muhlenberg county moved that the nomination of Judge Guffy be made unanimous. The motion was put and carried unanimously.

Attorney General Clifton J. Pratt arrived unexpectedly and paid a high tribute to former Governor Bradley, whose name, he said, would stand out clearly when the history of the past five years has been written with an impartial hand.

He talked of national issues, and paid his respects to the Democratic attacks upon the army.

Ex-Gov. Bradley's arrival was announced by cheers from the crowd that had gathered about the public square.

The distinguished gentleman came into the hall accompanied by E. D. Guffy and Nat T. Howard. He was introduced by Chairman Turner.

Gov. Bradley paid a high tribute to Judge Guffy for having the honesty to rise above his party wishes and decide the Taylor cases he believed was right.

"On our safety," said Gov. Bradley, "I lean in the judiciary. Other departments of our government may be torn by the political strife, but forever the judiciary should rise above the storm and strife."

Gov. Bradley went after the State administration and charged the Democrats, not with dishonesty, but with having too little sense to run the State. He showed that the Republican administration had found $1,800,000 of debts and had not only paid this debt, but had left a balance of $1,000,000. "Where is that money now?" asked he. "It is all gone, and to-day you are paying a higher tax rate than for many years, and you have a gigantic state debt piling up on you."

Gov. Bradley, turning to Attorney General Pratt, said: "Ladies and gentlemen, I want to pay my respects to the greatest living political curiosity in Kentucky—a Republican elected to office and holding it."

Gov. Bradley concluded his speech with an appeal to the Republicans of

Parents' Responsibility Great

It is the right of every child to be well born, and to the parents it must look for health and happiness. How inconceivably great is the parents' responsibility, and how important that no taint of disease is left in the blood to be transmitted to the helpless child, entailing the most pitiable suffering, and marking its little body with offensive sores and eruptions, catarrh of the nose and throat, weak eyes, glandular swellings, brittle bones, white swelling and deformity.

How can parents look upon such little sufferers and not reproach themselves for bringing so much misery into the world? If you have any disease lurking in your system, how can you expect well developed, healthy children? Cleanse your own blood and build up your health, and you have not only enlarged your capacity for the enjoyment of the pleasures of life, but have discharged a duty all parents owe to posterity, and made mankind healthier and happier.

There is no remedy that so surely reaches deep-seated, stubborn blood troubles as S. S. S. It searches out even hereditary poisons, and removes every taint from the blood, and builds up the general health. If weaklings are growing up around you, right the wrong by putting them on a course of S. S. S. at once. It is a purely vegetable medicine, harmless in its effects, and can be taken by both old and young without fear of any bad results.

Write us about your case, and let our physicians advise and help you. This will cost you nothing, and we will also send our book on blood and skin diseases.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

The Second district to carry out the promise made in the convention and elect Judge Guffy by an increased majority. His speech was greeted with prolonged cheers and it was some time before the convention ceased shouting for Bradley.

The Latest.

King Edward VII now lies in a secluded chamber in Buckingham Palace with the odds against him in a battle with death. The coronation has been postponed. The King is suffering from perityphitis, an ailment closely akin to appendicitis. His condition became so grave Monday night that fears were felt that he would not live through the day. The royal surgeons decided that the only operation would save the monarch's life, and this was performed at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It was declared to be successful, but the semi-official admission is made that several hours must yet pass before satisfactory results of King Edward's recovery might be made.

The sudden announcement of the postponement of the coronation festivities had no effect on a certain portion of London's population, and last night the streets of the metropolis were thronged by noisy crowds of drunken merry-makers who respected no laws.

Difficult Digestion

That is dyspepsia. It makes life miserable. Its sufferers eat not because they want to, but simply because they must. They know they are irritable and fretful; but they cannot be otherwise. They complain of a bad taste in the mouth, a tenderness at the pit of the stomach, an uneasy feeling of puffiness, headache, nervousness and what not. The efficient remedy, proved by permanent cures of thousands of severe cases, is Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Johnny's Vacation.

Johnny Mathias, of Central City, came over to Hartford Monday to spend his vacation, and have a good time. But Johnny misjudged the amount of booze that a visitor to Hartford should put in his good-time mixture, and in consequence became amazingly sociable; so much so, in fact that some one complained to the marshal, who took him in tow, and turned him over to Jailer Black. Johnny proceeded to jail as pleasantly as if that feature had been on the regular program of his vacation, but he insisted on remaining out in the corridor. When the jailer opened the massive door leading to a cell, Johnny began to regard his good time at an end, and began crying. The other prisoners who had become conversant with the surroundings, began to gush Johnny about playing the baby act, when he showed them he knew how to swear as well as cry.

For a while Johnny made things extremely interesting for the boys in jail, but finally quieted down, slept off his jag and was released from jail. We think this was Johnny's first experience in jail, and venture a prediction that he will mark Hartford off his list of "good-time" places.

Fire at Central City.

Central City, Ky., June 24, 1902.
DEAR THOMAS—I arrived here last night at 10:30, at 5:40 this morning the town was set on fire in honor of my visit. All the business portion across from the Metcalf Hotel is now a smoldering heap. The following is the result:

Geo. Gordon & Son, saloon, loss $2,000, insurance $500.
Hermosa Robs, restaurant, loss $2,000, insurance $500.
Dr. Jas. McDowell, restaurant, loss $1,000, no insurance.

John T. May, saloon and cold storage, loss $3,000, insurance $800.
The depot and Metcalf Hotel were both on fire, but owing to the fact that no wind was blowing they were both saved. It was a splendid opportunity to watch a big fire. It broke out in Gordon & Son's saloon, being caused by the explosion of a gasoline lamp. I give these particulars for the paper.

If they do not set Lexington on fire when I arrive to-day, I shall feel that my visit is not properly appreciated. If there is to be anybody killed or anything burnt in Hartford, postpone it until I come back.

Central City is in a chaotic condition. The railroad track is strewn with rubbish of all kinds, chiefest among which are empty kegs, bottles and jugs.

Well, as my train will soon be here and one town has been burnt in my honor, I am satisfied for one day. Excuse haste. J. D.

Fiendish Murder.

Central City, Ky., June 23.—Merryday Stone, aged forty-eight, was murdered about 8 o'clock last night. He was stabbed in the throat while eating supper and was knocked on the head with a hammer or hatchet. He was considered one of the best colored men in the county. J. R. Wootten, former Marshal, is working on the case and will use his bloodhounds. It is stated Stone had a few hundred dollars and was thinking of buying the property. The motive was robbery, as Stone was well liked by all black and white.

At the inquest held over the body of Merryday Stone, the evidence was so strong against Lewis Tett, the negro boarder, that he was locked up in jail charged with the murder.

Electric Death.

New York, June 24.—Mrs. J. D. Anderson met death at Croton, N. Y., in a peculiar manner. She was walking through her husband's store, carrying a pan of cherries, when she stopped and raised her hand to turn on an electric lamp and to steady herself she is supposed to have rested the pan against an iron railing about the counter.

The light current was evidently grounded and she received a shock of 1,800 volts, causing instant death.

HE GOT HOMESICK.

Morris Bowling Deserts the Army and is Arrested.

Says Monday's Owensboro Inquirer: Morris Bowling, of Fordsville, is in the lockup here, awaiting a detachment of soldiers from Ft. Logan, Col., where he is wanted for desertion. He was captured in this city Sunday afternoon by Officers Babbitt and Burdette.

Bowling is a son of J. M. Bowling, of Fordsville. He enlisted at Hartford April 8, 1901, along with his brother Austin Bowling, and was assigned to Company D, Eighteenth U. S. Infantry. When he joined the army he expected to go to the Philippines, but has remained in this country. His brother was placed in an other regiment, and is now on the island and has been for several months.

Camp life with no fighting grew irksome to the young soldier and several months ago he formed a plan to escape. On May 20 while his regiment was stationed at Ft. Logan, he deserted, having provided himself with a suit of citizen's clothes he got away without any trouble and came to Baskett in Henderson county, where he went to work in the mines. His object in deserting was to get home, but he concluded that if he went home he would be arrested so he hid out until he thought the search for him would be over.

His father came to the city Sunday and took the noon train for Baskett. While he was here he confided to a friend that he was going to Baskett after his boy, and the police seeing him, guessed at the same thing. They accordingly watched for him on his return. They came upon the Texas trail at 4 o'clock and getting off at the depot, walked up the track and over to the I. C. depot where he expected to take the train for Fordsville. The two officers appeared and told Bowling he was wanted. He demanded to know the charge, and he denied his identity. They had witnesses, however, who knew him, and took him along. When they reached the lockup he admitted he was the right man.

Bowling says his only reason for deserting was that he was homesick, and that he would have gone back after he had seen his mother. He is about twenty-three years old. He will be held here until word can be received from his officers.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

WHEN JUMBO II. SNEEZED.

After a Half Hour of Humping Himself He let go, and Great was the Commotion.

Jumbo II. sneezed yesterday. To the average person this information is of no startling importance, but to those who happened to be on the midway at the Maryland Industrial Exposition, Pennsylvania and North Avenue, when Jumbo sneezed the event was one long to be remembered, says the Baltimore Herald. Jumbo's sneeze is like the bursting of a boiler, and it created a fairly good-sized panic. The elephant began to get ready for the sneeze half an hour before it happened, and as the time for the event drew near he was rolling about in his cage in great agony. Suddenly he stopped, gave one below, and then sneezed.

The look of perfect contentment on his face after the great event in starting contrast to the terror seen on the faces of the fleeing people. Visitors to the exposition were running in all directions, not knowing what awful thing it was they were racing away from. Among the Mohammedans of the Oriental and Cingalese villages Jumbo's sneeze caused wild excitement. Oriental folks are most superstitious about elephants, and they believe to hear one sneeze brings all kinds of good luck. They rushed to Jumbo's cage and, bowing low before his elephantine highness, began praying at a rapid rate. When they finished they explained that an elephant's sneezes are of the rarest occurrence, and the event was one of great significance to them. Elephants are susceptible to cold and catch cold easily, but it is a very, very rare case when they sneeze.

Capt. Miller, Jumbo's keeper, says it is a good thing that this is so, for a few more sneezes like Jumbo had yesterday might blow the top of his head off.

The Panama Route.

Senator M. A. Hanna favors the Panama route for the isthmian canal, and The Commercial is much inclined to repose unlimited confidence in Senator Hanna's opinion on a business proposition like this. The commission appointed by the United States to investigate the Nicaragua and Panama routes reported in favor of the former, so long as the price named by the French company was exorbitant for the Panama route; but at $10,000,000 for the right of way and preliminary work, they favor the Southern route. Senator Fairbanks also favors the Panama route. This seems to leave but little room for the charges of those who assert that the advocates of the Panama route are obstructionists of the isthmian canal scheme.

The Nicaragua route is through a mountainous country; it would depend upon a lake to supply its water; and ships would have to be lifted over the up-grades and lowered again to the sea level by a vast system of locks. The Panama route, on the other hand is near a sea level route, and all the expert testimony is to the effect that it would involve fewer and less difficult engineering problems, and be less costly to operate. Then the Panama route is shorter. It would take longer to get to it from the Gulf ports, but practically no longer to reach it from the Atlantic port.

And then there should always be kept in mind the fact, that the canal would be a most important condition in was. The United States must protect its sea coasts, and as in the case of the Spanish war, when the Oregon had to steam clear around South America to get to Santiago, so much more, would the movement of war vessels from one ocean to the other be of vital importance in the case of war with a real naval power, and the Panama canal could be traversed in a few hours, while the Nicaragua canal would require days for its passage. An American fleet that could traverse the Panama canal and join with another American fleet to engage the enemy might be bottled up in the Nicaragua canal. This is an important consideration that must not be overlooked.

The Commercial believes that it would be a serious mistake for Congress to settle the question of a route. That should be left to the President, with an expert commission to aid him. Congress can trust its President and its army and navy experts, or this country is in a bad shape, and maybe doesn't need a canal at all, but assuming that we have a capable and honest Government, it would seem the wise course to leave the details of the canal to the officials best equipped to manage it.

Capt. Clark Promoted.

Washington, June 21.—Capt. Charles E. Clark, who achieved fame and won the plaudits of the American people by piloting the Oregon around the Horn during the Spanish war, was today advanced seven numbers in rank by the President, and appointed as a rear admiral of the navy. The promotion is generally commended in all circles, as Capt. Clark is unquestionably one of the most popular officers that ever wore the uniform of a naval officer. He is a native of Vermont, and has been in the navy since 1863. His service has been uniformly satisfactory prior to and including the exciting days of the Spanish war.

The Oregon was lying at Mare Island when the war broke out, with Capt. Clark in command. No naval vessel of her size had ever before rounded the Horn, but her services were needed, and she was ordered to join the Atlantic squadron. The history of Capt. Clark's management of his vessel on that long cruise is familiar.

tion, it was feared that he might be intercepted by the Spanish fleet. He was warned of this by the navy department, and inconceivably repudiated that the Oregon was perfectly capable of taking care of herself in the face of any enemy fleet. The run around the South America was record-breaking and the wonderful feature of the performance was the perfect condition in which the ship arrived at Jupiter Inlet, Fla., coaled up and took her place in the blockade line off Santiago. The part played by the Oregon in the battle of July 3 is to every one.

The L. H. & St. L. Railway

(HENDERSON ROUTE)

Are preparing to do a large excursion business from July 31st to August 12th, from all points on their line, to the new Owensboro Chautauque. Nothing like it has ever come to Kentucky. For twelve days the very best and most attractive Chautauque features are to be placed in the beautiful Seven Hills Park, near Owensboro, which is almost bound by this popular line of railway. Every good taste has been catered to. There will be popular lectures by Gen. Gordon, Gen. Wheeler, Dr. MacArthur, Gov. Bob Taylor, W. H. Sears, Mrs. Rorer, of the Ladies' Home Journal, Miss Ellen M. Stone, the renowned missionary, Lieut. Hobson, Dr. John MacNeil, the Scottish Spurgeon, and scores of others; and every day and every evening will be given a series of the most delightful entertainments, consisting of everything, from slight-of-hand and jugglery, to the highest class of popular music and moving pictures.

Farmers and their families will be especially interested in the coming of John M. Stahl, Secretary of the National Farmer's Congress, and every evening a great pyrotechnic display will be given by LaRoe's electric fountain, two feet larger than the one shown at the World's Fair.

Remember that the Henderson Route, the most popular passenger line in Kentucky, will give you full and complete information about the additional features of this assembly, through any of their agents, or you can write to the Superintendent of the Chautauque, W. G. Archer, Owensboro, Ky., and he will send you a special booklet containing full information as to camping and living privileges, and the complete program.
